

THE SENTENCE

There is that in love which, by the syntax of, men find women and join their bodies to their minds —which wants so to acquire a continuity, a place, a demonstration that it must be one's own sentence.

Robert Creeley