RECORRIDOS
Bedtime Story

Once upon a time there was a lady who had seven house plants. She was very proud of them and watered them every day. Normally she would begin with the three geraniums on the front porch, then water the rubber tree in the living room, and the ivy in the dining room, and finish with the two little violets in the kitchen, and this had become a sort of morning ritual for her. But sometimes she would start in the kitchen and go the other way, from the two little violets to the ivy, then the rubber tree, and finish with the three geraniums. Then one day she started in the living room, watered the rubber plant, then the geraniums, and finished with the violets in the kitchen.

She knew something was wrong, but she had to go all around the house before she realized what it was. She had forgotten the ivy.

"Hmm," she thought to herself. "I'm glad I noticed. The ivy needs water more than any of the others."
