LONG TERMS

I've lost my way on more than one occasion. In some temporary form, the question seems important. A momentary act of awareness and then.

Suppose I listen to common sense, unable to recall events immediately preceding. Suffering "reminders" throws no light.

What you learn while drunk is best remembered when drunk. I cannot even think time in reverse. Retention better after sleep.

Working backward, learning to learn. I cannot see how the birth of Jesus, for example, makes "now" indispensable. A diversity above zero.
