an hour glass
on my life
a crawfish going
backwards
so go my armours
a marigold weeping
of the watchful flow
called hearts ease
head of a willow tree
upon hill
the pole star pearls
above moon dawn
in a broken dance
my leaves are late
that the rebels are
imbark'd
still in pursuit of them & told that they have
been dispersed
on the sands
continue as a body
at the said bridge
a ship at sea
that comes full sail
an old man laid down & looking into thought
into port
at the stars sloth
desire is night accomplished
an elephant
a stork drink

one of iron
two pots

& taking sea

taught or earth

she taught or earth

& near one another

this medicine

this neighbourhood

It is just

that the gluttons

should be in a trap

flung upon their lands

which ought to

ruled by that

pressure me destroyed
a sea monster
fattened to a rock
crumple of white cliffs
blushed syringa
nor dazzle me a sun
wrapt in clouds
striped second cloth

he will dissipate
what would obstruct his light a tomb covered in acid burns trinkets of any kind
in gas briars

smuff bottles fixed in my heart gravitational contractions
hacked into transformation
and the larger the masses swell appropriated

privatised home consumed
salt sea imports
identity dispossessed to export
an aggressive consciousness
you have no business
extravagantly loading control

an eagle coming out of
a fountain
where she had bathed
herself
a rock tempestuous
