ST. MARK'S TALKS

DISCUSSION

THURSDAY January 10:  STEVE MC CAFFERY—Writing as a General Economy. An investigation of writing as a practice of economy as opposed to a production of structures, focusing on the presence of loss, waste, and irreducible residue. McCaffery has two new books: Knowledge Never Knew (Vehicule) and Panopticon (Blewointment). He is a member of the internationally acclaimed sound-performance ensemble The Four Horseman and a prolific literary theorist and critic. Open Letter, of which he is an editor, is collecting his collaborative essays with bp Nichol, aka the Toronto Research Group.
